War Notes.

The following is a portion of the lecture delivered on Aug. 26th, in St. George's Hall, by "Azamat-Batuk" on behalf of the poor families of Lorraine and Alsace, who are driven away from their homes and dying from starvation on the high roads and in the woods of France. The speaker represented the Pall Mall Gazette at the seat of war for some weeks. In the course of his remarks he said:

"It is already commonplace to say that the success of the Prussians has been the result of the mismanagement of the troops, and of the unprepared condition in which the army entered upon the war. But I do not know whether you have in your mind a summary of the chief reasons of this unreadiness of war. A country paying 600,000,000f. for its army, as France does, should have the right of expecting itself always prepared for war, but the money has been thrown away chiefly in the pay of the Generals and Marshals who spend their lives solely at the Court. The so-called Intendence, which, it seems, has been recently copied in England, has done absolutely nothing, except the officers drawing their salaries, and leading the army into the field without provisions, without ammunition, and even without carriages and horses to carry provisions and ammunition. The army itself, scattered all over France with a view to keep in subjection the revolutionary spirit of the larger cities, was concentrated very slowly, and was divided into an endless number of corps, for no other practical purpose than to create as many marshals and Generals as there were friends of Marshal LeBoeuf, or persons in favor at the Court. The Etat Major, a body whose chief duties ought to consist in the study, in time of peace, of strategetical positions all over Europe, and of reconnoitering in time of war, were officers who did not even know the map of France, and who were neither able to make a proper reconnoitering, nor would have been sent to make one, as they were chiefly aristocrats and fils debonnes maisons whom it would be a pity to expose to dangerous duties. The Prussians send usually a couple of dozen of Uhlans, as they call their lancers, using their original Polish name, with three or four officers, and if one of them comes back safely with some useful information, they are quite satisfied, thinking the purchase is worth the expense. Thus they know everything about the French army, while the French know nothing about them. Moreover, there is an actual want of staff officers in France. Marshal Neil intended to create in every regiment a post of an officer of the Etat Major, but this measure has met with the discontent of the whole army, as the line officers became jealous of the accomplished young men who through their knowledge would be at once elevated to a more prominent possition. According to the Marshal's plan, such an officer had to pass the infantry, cavalry and artillery regiments, so as to be fully versed in all the branches of the service, and, naturally enough, would on many occasions be the teacher or tutor even of the colonel of the regiment himself. This did not suit the army, and a cry was raised against the measure, which was consequently abolished, and the army found itself without officers of the Etat Major at the moment when they were wanted. Besides this, whatever may be said concerning Napoleon as having nourished for a long time the intention of going to war with Prussia, there can be no doubt whatever that Prussia had nourished the idea of going to war with France a still longer time, and made all the preparations which Napoleon could not have made without having every one's suspicions excited against him, both at home and abroad, while King William and Count Bismarck made all they liked without being noticed by any one. Not only the enormous Prussian army has been formed, armed and prepared for fighting; but the whole ground where the war was likely to take place has been studied by traveling Prussian officers for several years past, and a few months before the opening of the war a German officer is believed to have visited every corner of Vincennes and Metz in the assumed character of an old German beggar selling matches. The permanent military attache at the Court of the Tuileries went wherever he chose, and was shown everything he wished to see, while the French attache at Berlin was not allowed to see anything, and did not probably care to see anything.

A GERMAN PEOPLE IN FRANCE.

Further, the border population of the east of France is German. Therefore, the Prussian troops could gather all the information they wished from every child they met on the frontier, while the French were utterly unable to speak with the population on the German side of the frontier. France was covered and is covered with German spies, and a report says that already nineteen of them have been shot; while France has not a single spy in Germany. An offensive plan of campaign had been elaborated, and two points selected as bases of operation—Strasbourg and Metz. In those two places it was supposed that all the stores would be found, but when the army approached the frontier the fortresses contained nothing but empty sacks. When I arrived at the frontier in the last week in July I found there only one corps, scattered over the whole distance from the Luxembourg frontier to the corner of the Palatinate, and even this corps was supplied with regular war rations only a couple of weeks later. There was painted an endless quantity of columns in the English papers concerning the mental, political, and other hesitation of the Emperor Napoleon to cross the frontier. But in reality there was no hesitation whatever. There were no troops to cross with; and nothing to eat besides what could be bought in the neighborhood for the ready cash, of which there was then plenty. In the beginning of August, when the other crops had reached the frontier, the Emperor began, to lose his patience with the Intendance, and we had already then some rumors of his discontent both with it and Marshal Le Bouf. The plan of the campaign, which ought to have been completely changed as the time for an offensive movement was passed, remained still the same. The stores began to be much more quickly supplied to the two bases of operations, but they could no more serve so advantageously as they would would have served formerly, for one-half of them were consumed almost at the moment they arrived, and the other half was subsequently cut away on various occasions by the enemy. The plan of invading the Rhenish provinces and the Palatinate having been calculated so as not to keep too great a force on the same spot, with a view both to take at once possession of a larger space and of not having too great a number of men to provide for in what were anticipated to be devastated provinces, the three corps (the first of McMahon, the second of Frossard and the third of Bazaine) had been scattered over a distance of 100 miles from Sierck to Strasbourg, with no other reserves than that of Bourbaki's Imperial Guards camped around Metz, and a few regiments which the Fourth Corps of Laemirault might have dispatched in case of necessity from the valley of the Moselle, which it was appointed to protect. You know how easily the Prussians broke this thin line, and how they forced the French, prepared only for an offensive war, to pass to the defensive, with no serious plan formed, with the whole country thrown into a panic, and with one of its bases of operation, Strasbourg, cut away.

THE FIGHTING.

I need not dwell on the particular circumstances under which the first battles have been fought. The little that is known about them has already been printed. As to anything like a connected exposition of the whole campaign for the first month, there is absolately no material upon which it could be constructed yet. Properly speaking, I am of opinion that there was no campaign at all until about a week ago. There was only chaotic fighting, in which some 50,000 men on both sides lost their lives, and in consequence of which a considerable portion of the French territory has fallen into the hands of the Prussians. The campaign began when Bazaine took the command of the army on the clearly expressed stipulation that he would take no orders from those above him. What will be the result of this campaign remains to be seen, but I think that if we have patience enough to allow Bazaine and McMahon, before we pronounce any judgment on them, the same amount of time for restoring things which has been allowed for spoiling them, we shall hear of results certainly not anticipated by those who are accustomed to read only the very partial judgments expressed by a certain portion of the English press. The chief reason which leads me to this belief is not any particular admiration for the capacities of those Generals, although their talent is a very important point, but a deep conviction based upon data which I have myself collected on the spot. I know positively that the French army is gaining strength every day, that the provision comes in with almost incredible rapidity, that the Prussians, the more they advance, have the greater difficulty in providing for themselves, and, finally, the panic which spread itself during the first days of ill-success has passed over in France. Of this panic, one who has not witnessed it can form no adequate conception. It was not confined only to the civil population of the invaded provinces, but extended throughout almost the whole of the army. So little expected the soldiers to be beaten at the opening of the campaign, that no human force could make them listen to the signal for retreat when reverse was at hand. So little did they expect to be short of ammunition that no human force could prevent them from expending their cartridges with the utmost lavishness. And the greater was their assurance of victory, the greater were they afterward dispirited when the overwhelming forces of the enemy proved that defeat was possible. The cries which were heard on the battle-field from the dying, as well as from the flying soldiers, against the Generals, had something sinister in them. And it was sufficient that a couple of soldiers who escaped from Weissenburg, Forbach or Woerth should meet a French regiment and tell it what was going on in the lines, for the murmur of discontent to be extended to the troops who had not yet fired a single shot. These troops, harassed by repeated unnecessary journeys from Chalons to Metz or Nancy and back—journeys which were ordered and countermanded under the influence of the successive defeats and the absence of any plan—had already badly disposed the troops, and made them much more impressionable to the unpleasant tales which their defeated comrades had to tell them. Returning to Chalons, or to some provincial town, these fresh but already infected troops communicated their disposition of mind to the Garde Mobile, whence the discontentment, transforming itself into a panic, spread itself all over France. But if the soldiers had thus real reason for complaint, the civil population had scarcely any, for at the moment they circulated the most absurd stories they had not suffered in any way whatever, had no contribution to pay, and even no soldiers to keep in their houses, as have the population in Germany. The real sufferers, the peasants of the border districts, who had then already lost everything, hid themselves and suffered quietly, while the townsfolk of Nancy and kindred places conducted themselves in a way which has constantly caused me to ask where Erckmann-Chatrian took their originals from for painting the heroes of Alsace and Lorraine?"

WOMEN OF THE SECOND EMPIRE.

The speaker closed with a reference to the state of France. He alluded, thus to the women of the Empire: "I am sorry I must give a very bad part to the fair sex. I have seldom seen that they, as a body, conduct themselves anywhere properly. In France, wherever you go, the greatest disturbance and the greatest mischief, are done by the ladies. The greatest panic is spread by them. The bulk of the female population is as it is everywhere, corrupted by an indolent existence, deprived of all sorts of knowledge, and physically weakened by an abnormal manner of living, none of them thought for a single moment that they were answerable for a great deal of the mischief caused to their country. Were they better educated, they would form better wives and better mothers. The better wives and better mothers would better influence their children and husbands, who would thus be made better citizens, better soldiers and better politicians. A sovereign would never be able to enter upon war with a population not disposed to it, and the politicians would never permit themselves to be drawn into the negotiations so critical as to lead to war if they were selected from among better citizens. The Empire, the Court, fashionable Paris, with its fashionable shops selling fashionable dresses, would never have tempted reasonable women so far as to forget that all that brilliancy has its dark side, enormously costly in money and inevitably leading finally to a still greater cost of lives. And when all this is done—when France is thrown into the miseries it now finds itself in—who is it that seeks that even the honor of the country should be sacrificed? Again women, and of the highest circles. It is they who begin to talk about mediation, as if they did not know that not a single Frenchman will cease to fight until he himself, not other people, acknowledges that the country is vanquished, and that there is absolutely no hope of rescuing France from political degradation and military dishonor."

McFadden's Master Stroke.

Samuel McFadden was a watchman in a bank. He was poor but honest, and his life was without reproach. The trouble with him was, that he felt he was not appreciated. His salary was only four dollars a week, and, when he asked to have it raised, the president and cashier, and the board of di[illegible] glared at him through their spectacles, and frowned on him, and told him to go out and stop his insolence, when he knew business was dull and the bank could not meet its expenses now, let alone recklessly lavishing one dollar a week more upon such a miserable worm as Samuel McFadden. And then Samuel McFadden felt depressed and sad, and the haughty scorn of the president and cashier cut him to the soul. He would often go out into the ship-yard and bow his venerable twenty-four inch head, and weep gallons and gallons of tears over his insignificance and pray that he might be made worthy of the cashier's and the president's polite attention.

"One night a happy thought struck him; a gleam of light burst upon his soul, and gazing down the dim vista of years, he saw himself rich, honored and respected. So Samuel McFadden fooled around and got a jimmy and a monkey wrench, and a cross-cut saw and a cold chisel, a drill, and about a half a ton of gunpowder and nitro-glycerine, and all those things. Then in the dead of the night he went to the fire-proof safe, and after working at it a while, burst the door and brick work into immortal smash with such perfect success that there was not enough of the safe left to make a carpet tack. Mr. McFadden then proceeded to load up with coupons, greenbacks and currency and specie, and to nail all the odd change that was lying around anywhere so that he pranced out of the bank with $1,000,000 on him. He then retired to an unassuming residence out of town, and sent word to the detectives where he was.

It was all serene and beautiful for Samuel McFadden now. He felt that it was all right at last, and that the dark night of sorrow had passed and the bright rays of the sun of prosperity at last illuminated his path. A detective called on him next day with a soothing note from the cashier. McFadden treated it with lofty scorn. Detectives called on him every day with humble notes from the President and the cashier and the board of directors and clerks and stockholders. At last the bank officers got up a magnificent and private supper, to which McFadden was invited. He came, and, as the bank officers bowed down in the dust before him, he pondered over the bitter, bitter past, and his soul was filled with wild exultation. [It seems to me that the last sentence is symmetrical and poetical! It strikes me so, anyhow.]

Before he drove away in his carriage that night it was fixed that Mr. McFadden was to keep half a million of that money, and to be unmolested if he returned the other half. He fulfilled his contract like an honest man; but refused with haughty disdain the offer of the cashier to marry his (McFadden's) daughter.

Mac is now honored and respected. He moves in the best society; he browses around in purple and fine linen and other good clothes and enjoys himself first rate. And often now he takes his infant son upon his knee and tells him of his early life, and instills holy precepts in the child's mind, and shows him how, by industry, perseverance, and frugality, and nitro-glycerine, and monkey wrenches and enterprise, and cross-cut saws, and familiarity with the detective system, even the poorest may rise to affluence and respectability.

A New "Fire King."

CARBONIC ACID GAS AS AN EXTINGUISHER OF FIRE—PROPOSITION TO SUPPLY THE CITY THROUGH PIPES—A COMPANY TO BE FORMED.

From the New York Herald.

The Herald has always been foremost in chronicling improvements, inventions and the successful efforts which have been made and are making for the moral and material progress of the people of the United States. And in no other country in the world has there been so many valuable inventions discovered and so many improvements made in so short a space of time as in this country. For many years past the attention of scientific men and ingenious mechanics, with whom, fortunately, the United States are well supplied, has been attracted to improvements in appliances for extinguishing fires. The world is indebted to Latta, a Cincinnati mechanic, for the present steam fire engine. Everybody knows what a great improvement upon the old fire engine it is. But the new invention, by which carbonic acid gas is efected into a burning building, immediately extinguishing the fire, promises to surpass, if its ardent supporters are to be believed, all the attempts which have hitherto been made in that direction. Notwithstanding the successful exhibitions in October, 1869, at the Battery, accounts of which were published in all the papers, the efforts at organizing a company in this city have been unsuccessful.

At that time when the subject was proposed to the city authorities of New York, $100,000 and one-tenth of the stock of the company was demanded by them. The enterprise then fell through for want of the requisite amount of capital.

But in the city of Brooklyn there has been a company organized who have obtained from the city authorities the right to lay their pipes in the wards fronting the river, from Gowanus creek to the Navy Yard. The company propose to build a reservoir of sufficient capacity for all emergencies and put down four inch pipes, running in every direction through the streets and having in front of every door a valve, to which a small rubber hose can be easily attached, by which the stream of gas can be directed to any room on fire.

To make such a reservoir, with its necessary retorts for making gas and laying 200 miles of pipe through the city, will not cost more, it is said, than 250,000 dollars.

There can be no doubt that the damages by fire in the United States are at least $50,000,000 yearly. Of this loss a large portion is due to the water which is flooded in and upon the burning property. Goods which have escaped the destructive effects of fire are ruined by water, one element proving almost as useless as the other.

It is indeed very strange that carbonic acid gas, which was discovered by Dr. Joseph Black, a chemist of Edinburg, composed as it is of two parts of oxygen and one part of carbon should extinguish fire, when oxygen is necessary to produce combustion. Repeated experiments have shown that fire cannot burn in an atmosphere containing one-fifth part of its volume of this gas. In a common temperature it is one-half heavier than the air, but when heated it expands and becomes much lighter. In 1851, a coal mine in England, that had been on fire for thirty years, and had extended over twenty-six acres, was completely extinguished by ejecting only eight millions of cubic feet of carbonic acid gas.

It is reported that in this city a company is being formed composed of some of our most wealthy and influential citizens, who will endeavor to get a charter from the Legislature this winter, and judging from the names of those interested in the enterprise, there will be no difficulty in obtaining it. They will then at once proceed with the laying down of the pipes, building a reservoir in some central location; and it is confidently anticipated that in one year the whole thing will have been completed and be ready for operation.

If it shall prove successful it will indeed be a wonderful revolution in the present system of extinguishing fires. And there does not appear to be any reason why it should not be successful, for the portable machine is now ready on every hose in the most of our large hotels, and in New England nearly all the large manufacturing establishments and cotton-mills have them.

Brigham Young is looking for a comparatively single gentleman on whom to bestow the hands of five and twenty marriageable daughters.

Coal boats are lying three abreast for a space of seven miles along the river about Jeffersonville, Indiana, waiting for an opportunity to get over the falls.

Old Gentleman (disgusted)—Hey, Waiter, here's a caterpillar in this soup! Waiter (flippantly)—Yes, sir. About this time o' year for

The Italian Difficulty.

PARIS, Sept. 12.

Signor Mordina has arrived in Paris. He brings the assurance that the Italian Government has determined to forestall the revolutionary movement in Italy and Rome by an official occupation of Roman territory. Several members of the College of Cardenas have given in their adhesion from necessity.

The Italian army now holds all roads north and south leading into Roman territory. The Italian squadron is now at Civita Vecchia. No conflict is anticipated with the Zouaves, Gen. Kelser, the Papal War Minister, having given his opinion that the Papal force does not justify any attempt at resistance. The Prussian Government notified the Italian Government that it has no intention of interfering in any way with the question of Rome. On occupation of the city, a popular vote will be taken throughout the Papal States upon the annexation of the Papal territory to Italy.

About the Emperor.

A special to the World from Ostends says: The Mergen Zeitung of Hesse Cassel gives particulars of the arrival of the Emperor Nopoleon at Cassel. He was accompanied by Gen. B. Felix Donay and Sebran as prisoners of parole and by a brilliant staff of French officers on parole. The Prussian civil and military authorities in full uniform received them at the station with companies of Prussian infantry as a guard of honor, a squadron of Hussars keeping back the people. The Emperor, who was received with an Imperial salute, wore the uniform of Lieut-General, but no sword; his breast was covered with orders and he wore an undress scarlet kepie. He is quite corpulent and looked very gray.

The Empress Eugenie is still at the Marine Hotel in Hastings, attended by Ferdinand de Lesseps. All the ladies of the Court who came with her majesty to Belgium remained in that country.

Will Listen at the Tuilleries.

The latest intelligence from the Prussian headquarters is that, in reply to the proposition made through the Austrian Legation, King William declares that he will listen to a proposition of peace only in the Tuilleries, and from the Imperial Government of France.

Paris Becoming Isolated.

The World's Paris correspondent telegraphs: This city is beginning to be isolated. We have had no mails to-day from London. No dispatches have come through by telegraph, except for the newspapers. The Government exercises the supervision of the office in the Place de la Bourse, from which alone dispatches are allowed to be sent. It is contradicted fairly, but it is positive.

The aspect of the city is tranquil though not at all gay. No fears of mob violence are entertained by any one notwithstanding rumors to that effect which seem to be spread abroad in England and Belgium. I repeat that I have never seen public order more perfect than since the proclamation of the Republic.

Rochefort, who was much feared, is in office and manifests the most perfect conservative temper. He is of great use in consoling the extreme Radicals. The legations of Russia and Austria are busily at work in the interest of peace. It is believed they would already have secured an armistice had not the English government blockaded the way by its hesitation and hostile attitude. The English government is believed to have a secret understanding with the King of Prussia, adverse to the wishes of Count Bismarck, in order to secure, if possible, the suppression of the Republic.

I have it on high authority that Count Bismarck desires neither Alsace nor Lorraine, and is anxious to secure peace if possible, but King William is bitterly opposed to any negotiations with the Republican authorities and insists upon advancing to Paris to crush the revolution before the fever can extend to Germany.

Activity in Financial Circles.

The successes at Toul and Montmedy, together with the reported halt in the enemy's advance, have led to more activity on the bourses. There is considerable buying on speculation.

The Gaulois also states that the diplomatic bodies have postponed their departure.

Fortifications to be Strengthened.

Orders have been issued by the Government in Paris for the fortification of Havre, Marseilles, Dunkirk, and other ports.

The quotas of men of the large French war steamers are to be be filled to the utmost, and vessels are held ready to weigh anchor at a moment's notice.

The telegrams from the seat of war in the papers here to-day are a perfect jumble of wild and contradictory statements. The reports forwarded to New York have been in the main correct. The telegraphic bureau in Paris has begun to refuse to receive private telegrams for transmission.

Garibaldi Coming.

A Sensation.

PRAGUE, Sept. 12.

A Berlin telegram to the Palitique of this city says a great sensation was created by the dispatch of the American Government to its Envoys at the Prussian capital expressing a hope that there would now be a cessation of the war in view of the fact that its aim, the dethronement of the Emperor, has been accomplished. No sooner had the minister communicated the dispatch to Von Thielen and Ulembourg than it was sent to King William by special courier.

The Roman Question.

LONDON. Sept. 12.

The people surrounded the Papal Zouaves in their entrenchments at Viterba, Montfiascone, Valentia and threatened to attack them. Order was shouted in the name of the King of Italy.

The Daily Telegraph has a special dispatch stating that arrangements for the occupation of the Papal territory have agreed to a plebiscitum to be taken by which the inhabitants are to decide for the Pope or King as civil ruler, the decisions to be binding on both. Meantime Italian troops will hold Roman territory until the voting is over, and if the result is adverse to the King they will be withdrawn.

The Papal towns are sending petitions to the Italian government for protection.

NAPLES, Sept. 12.

The King will not hesitate to make Rome the capital of the nation.

The official journals at Florence justify the occupation of the patrimony of St. Peter, maintaining it to be as necessary for the Pope as for Italy. The journals hope the Pontiff will accept the guardianship of the Italian Government.

Washburne Cheered.

PARIS, Sept. 12.

Mr. Washburne to-day while on his way to the central teleraph office to send a dispatch was recognized in front of the building by the crowd when cheers arose. The crowd increased and the minister received a most enthusiastic ovation. Mr. Washburne was much moved. This evening the employes of the telegraph company and many others assembled in front of the American Legation and made another demonstratton in honor of the government of of the United States and its representative.

LONDON, Sept. 12.

A gentleman has arrived here from Berlin, why it is anticipated, is seeking to place a Prussian loan on the market.

The "Captain."

Her Majesty's steamer "Inconstant," brings news of the loss of the Captain. The Captain before sailing very narrowly escaped destruction by fire. The packing of her feed pipe ignited, and the fire had made considerable progress before the discovery. It was extinguished with difficulty. During the gale, one of her heavy guns got loosened from its fastening, in consequence of the tremendous rolling of ship, and suddenly swinging round struck a gunner, killing him.

The Shipping Gazette demands a strict investigation. The British public should know how one of the staunchest vessels afloat foundered in weather which a collier might have outlived.

The Duke of Saldanha has started for London to fill the post of Ambassador at the Court of St. James.

The Chinese Difficulty.

LONDON, Sept. 12.

The last advices from China regarding the affair at Tien Tsin were unsatisfactory. The Chinese were violent in conduct and were concentrating troops there.

A project for laying another telegraph cable to America is announced.

A cable special to the Herald, from London, on the 12th, says: A correspondent writes from Paris, on the 10th inst.: Paris is quiet. There is great activity in the preparations for defense. The National Guards occupy the ramparts, and the forts are fully manned. The arming of the populace is going on rapidly and all are being drilled. A thousand Terriers have been sent to join the four thousand regulars now obstructing the Prussian advance. All the bridges around Paris have been blown up.

It is asserted that MacMahon wished to retreat to Paris but was prevented by Palikao's order. He will justify himself to the public when recovered from his wounds.

Several of the Garde Mobile belonging to wealthy families have disappeared. It is estimated that there are 200,000 of the Garde Mobile in Paris. The state of the streets is fearful. The Tuileries gardens are occupied by artillery. Four generals, one colonel and five commanders have been sent to a German fortress for refusing to sign the capitulation at Sedan.

The Invading Force.

A special correspondent of the Tribune at Rheims, Sept. 6th, says, "the King's headquarters were established here yesterday and are to remain until the 19th, to give all the troops time to concentrate. Including what can be spared from Metz, and Severn and North German corps, besides two Bavarian and the Wurtemburg corps on the road, unhindered, according to official reports, there was six full cavalry divisions. The main forces are expected to reach Paris on the 13th or 14th. When the regiments now coming forward arrive, and the reserves also join their regiments, the German army will certainly reach and probably exceed 400,000.

The inhabitants everywhere reproach the Emperor, but do not favor the Republic. They are all anxious for peace, and are mostly in favor of the Count de Paris.

Bismarck has said he will have such a tremendous force in France as must crush resistance, and especially prevent everywhere the organization of new forces.

It is reported that Bazaine not only refused capitulation when informed that the Emperor and McMahon's army were prisoners and when the Emperor advised the surrender of Metz, but declared in a towering passion that he would not respect Napoleon's wishes and would shoot any French officer advising a surrender.

It is believed that Russia and Austria have rejected all overtures and will not interfere for the Republic of France.

The Journal de St. Petersburg, semi-official, tells the French substantially that they had better yield Alsace and so much of Lorraine as Germany needs.

The recognition of the French Republic by America was to be expected, but the Berlin foreign office thinks the extreme warmth of America's declaration implies a partial withdrawal of sympathy from Prussia following so closely after Secretary Fish's refusal to protest against the expulsion of Germans from France.

A Tribune special correspondent, writing from Karlsruhe, 8th, says: The Strasbourg besieging army is considerably reinforced. Their numbers are nearly 70,000. The sorties by the defenders are desperate but futile. Batteries are rapidly completing, and the heaviest guns are being placed in the nearest portcullis.

The French sharpshooters are doing much mischief on the Upper Rhine Railroad, between Besle and Freesburg. It has been repeatedly cut, and passenger trains are fired on and passengers wounded.

The inhabitants are calculating as to where the bombs will fall.

The walls are a mile and a half from the outer boulevard and the outlying forts are a mile from the walls, so that the enemy's guns must take position three miles from the outer boulevards.

In the meantime negotiations are very actively going on. The statement of the Gaulois, that England demands an armistice, is not true. It has been asserted from official authority, in Downing street, that England has sent no note to Prussia.

Accepts.

BOSTON, Sept. 12.

Wendell Phillips accepts the labor reform nomination for Governor in the following letter: "I have no wish to be the Governor of Massachusetts, and flattering as is this confidence. I thoroughly dislike to have my name drawn into party politics, for I belong to no political party, but I see nothing in your platform from which I dissent, and the struggle which underlies your movement has my fullest and heartiest sympathies. Capital and labor are partners, not enemies. They stand face to face, in order to bring about a fair division of the common profit. I am fully convinced that hitherto legislation has leaned too much, leaned most unfairly, to the side of capital. Hereafter we should be impartial. The law should do all it can to give the mass more leisure, a more complete education, better opportunities and a share of the profits. It is a shame to our Christianity and our civilization for our social system to provide and expect that one man at 70 years of age should be lord of many thousands of dollars, while hundreds of other men who have made as good use of their talents and apportunities, lean on charity for their daily bread. There must be irregularity, but the best minds and hearts of the land should give themselves to the work of changing this gross injustice, this appalling inequality. I feel sure that the ready way to turn public thought and effort into this channel, is for the working men to organize a political party. No such question will ever yet be fearlessly treated. On questions like these a political party is the surest and readiest, if not the only way to stir discussion and insure improvement. If my name will strengthen your movement you are welcome to it. Allow me to add that, though working for a large vote, if we fail to get it we should not be discouraged by a small one. Last year's experience shows your strength, and the late slavery movement proves how quickly correct principles win the assent of earnest men. Yours truly,

(Signed) WENDELL PHILLIPS.

Official Dispatches Abroad.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.

The only official dispatch recently sent abroad relative to the war, was on Friday, when General Grant wans in Washington, and addressed to Bancroft, but copies of which were also transmitted to Ministers Washburn and Motley, to the effect that while we cannot act in connection with other nations yet if our our good officer should be requested by both the belligerents, we should be happy to extend them with the view of bringing about a peace between the two great Powers with which we have traditional friendship.

Our Government wish scrupulously to abstain from interfering with the affairs of foreign nations, if for no other reason than because it would set an example and expresses no opinion as to the merits of the war.

The telegram to Minister Bancroft was courteously worded so as not to give any ground for doubt as to our position.

Diplomatic representatives of Spain, Chili, Peru and Equador are now here and an early settlement of the formal terms of peace between the countries is expected.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Sept. 12.

The twenty-first annual fair of the Ohio State Board of Agriculture began here today under favorable auspices. The grounds are located conveniently near to the railroads and to the city, and comprise a hundred acres, part of which is well covered with shade trees. Varieties.

—Work has been commenced on the third story addition to the Saving's Bank and adjoining blocks.

—The "Rescue Hook & Ladder" Ball last evening was very successful, the hall being crowded, and the proceeds netting the company a nice sum.

—A light in the direction of Church Run, evidently from a burning derrick and well, could be seen from the city last evening. We have learned no particulars.

—Elwood's Female Minstrels, the new though already famous troupe, will give one of their entertainments at Pleasantville on Monday evening next, the 19th inst. Of course, they will be greeted with a full house.

—As the evenings grow cooler, the hand-organ musicians are gradually disappearing. During the past summer Titusville has been visited by organists, halt, lame and blind, and in charity we hope our citizens may never be obliged to gaze upon their like again.

—Mr. W. H. Andrews, late of Louisville, Ky., will open an immense stock of dry goods in the new Shugart Block, Spring street, in a few days. Mr. A. has had an extensive experience, and having secured some of the finest rooms in the city, he intends keeping goods to correspond.

—The O. C. & A. Railroad are laying a switch north of their present track, between the passenger depot and Mechanic street. The branch will be several hundred feet in length and will greatly accommodate the company and its customers in the shipment and delivery of goods.

—This region is likely to be overrun with amusements, good bad and indifferent during the coming season, as it is announced that forty troupes have started from the eastern cities fully equipped for the campaign. It is probable that at least thirty-nine of them will "take in" the oil country.

—Many ladies complain of the heavy growth of grass and weeds fringing the sidewalks along a large number of the less frequented streets. These growths have been unusually large this year, and being covered by dust a portion of the time and rain or dew the balance, are particularly injurious to feminine wearing apparel. Cannot the Street Commissioner oblige property owners to abate this nuisance in front of their premises, or, in lieu of that, detach a force to do the work?

THE proposition of laying the corner stone of the new Public School House, with fitting public ceremonies, is under consideration by the School Board. Such a proceeding would be eminently fit and proper and in accordance with the general custom.

OUR GRAPE SUPPLY.—Our readers throughout the oil region are probably not aware that the section which furnishes all the supply of grapes now so liberally displayed in every grocery and fruit stand, is located almost at our very doors. Yet such is the case. From the early autumn until winter, an endless supply is shipped from the Brocton vineyards, situated in a section of which that station is about the centre, a very large quantity being billed to Titusville alone. Mr. G. Smith, producer and wholesale dealer, Portland, N. Y., has been the general agent for this vicinity for the past three or four years, and he is enabled to supply the demand from his own vineyard and those of Messrs. Fay & Quigley.

He offers every variety, the Concord, Hartford Prolific, Catawba, Isabella, Delaware, some fifty kinds of the Roger Hybrids, &c., &c. The supply this season is unusually large, and were it not for the excellent quality of the Brocton grapes they would be a drug in the market.

Mr. Smith expects to dispose of about fifty tons in the Oil Creek Valley this Fall, and all desiring a supply of this delicious fruit, at the lowest rates, can be accommodated on leaving their orders at the express office.

ATTENTION, FIREMEN.—There will be a meeting of the officers of the Fire Department, at the "Col. Drake" Engine House, at 7½ o'clock this (Tuesday) evening. A full attendance is requested, as business of importance is to be transacted.

P. McGRAW, Chief Engineer.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.—The Annual meeting for the election of officers and other important business will be held at 8 o'clock this (Tuesday) evening, at Good Templar's Hall, Kingsland Block. A full attendance is desired.

G. F. CHASE, Pres.

Let Us Have Peace.

France provoked the war, and being beaten, she must pay the cost of it. Prussia has enough of glory, let her be magnanimous to her fallen adversary. The American people cannot fail to sympathize with the effort of any people to establish free institutions. The moral sympathy of our people has been enlisted on the German side of this conflict and controversy, because of the popular distrust of Napoleon, and the odium that attaches to his name, among the friends of political liberty. But the tables will be turned if the fiat goes forth that a Republic based upon the consent of the people shall not be suffered to exist. No election has taken place in France since Napoleon became a prisoner. The Government of Jules Favre cannot be said to be legitimate, in the proper acceptation of that term. It is an accidental creation. A breath has made it, and a breath or storm may dissolve, or destroy it. When the French people pronounce their acquiescence through the ballot box, or when a presumption of submission may be assumed, from lapse of time, then its acts may be held and treated as final or binding. But a third government may repudiate Jules Favre as he has set at naught the Imperial authority. It is probably this view that in part restrains England from a premature recognition of the so-called Republic, and that renders King William impatient to recover indemnity for the past and security for the future, which shall not be questioned or overturned by new complications or exigencies, revenges or ambitions. A peace which satisfies neither party, and which is liable to rupture to-morrow, is no peace at all.

Information Wanted.

Ever since the surrender at Sedan, either the line "McMahon Killed," or "McMahon Recovering," has appeared regularly in the display heading preceding our telegraphic dispatches, as one or the other report came regularly to hand. Now it is becoming very desirable that this question should be settled, and that the world should know whether the French commander is or is not in the land of the living. The last news kindly permits him to tarry yet a little longer, but what the next will do with him is very uncertain. In the meantime the French-Irishmen of New York are getting up a grand demonstration in honor of the deeds of the great departed, and more obituaries are being written than the Marshal would be able to read if he should live to the age of the patriarchs.

FINE RESIDENCES.—Five years ago the citizens of Titusville, in building, paid little attention to architectural beauty, and indeed, in the then unsettled state of the community, the chief object of all was to secure a comfortable dwelling place at the least possible expense. At that time very few, even of those engaged in business, expected to remain here permanently, and with this feeling almost universal it is not to be wondered at that so little progress was made in the appearance of the city. The transition period was passed safely however, and with the firm establishment of this as the emporium of the oil regions and the centre of a great and constantly increasing trade, people came to the sensible conclusion that it might be possible to go farther and fare worse. This feeling caused an immediate demand to spring up for the services of architects and builders, and within the past year there has been a most wonderful revolution in the character of the buildings constructed, to say nothing of the number.

Among the more noticeable, standing as it does, in the opinion of many, at the head of the list of handsome residences, is the dwelling of Mr. M. F. Benedict, located on the corner of Pine and Drake streets. The design is of the irregular Italian character, with a tower on the east side and a double bay window in front, while dormer and bay windows on the west side add vastly to the general appearance of the structure. The interior is arranged on a very liberal scale, the lower floor containing a parlor, sitting-room, dining-room, kitchen, pastry, wash-rooms, &c., &c., and a large and commodious hall from which ascends a broad circular stairway. The second story is divided into sitting rooms and sleeping apartments, designed with a view to elegance and convenience. The entire building is heated by furnaces in the basement, and is supplied with gas, hot and cold water, bath rooms and all the modern conveniences it is possible to mention. The only drawback to the completeness of Mr. Benedict's residence, at present, is a lack of shade trees and shrubbery, but this, of course, time alone will remedy.

The dwelling of Mr. James Caldwell, No. 24 South Main street, is also a very handsome one, and adds much to the appearance of a locality in which every effort is being made to outstrip all other sections of the city. This building is an Italian villa, with Mansard roof, spacious verandas and bay windows, and the outside walls finished in imitation of stone. Without going into details, we will state that no pains or expense will be spared to make the inside all that refined taste and a desire for convenience could require.

Both the residences above mentioned were designed and built by Mr. John S. Codington, the well-known architect and builder, of this city. These truly elegant dwellings reflect great credit upon the professional skill and artistic taste of Mr. Codington, as well as] upon his discriminating judgment in all departments of domestic architecture.

NEW HAT STORE IN TITUSVILLE.—A great want has been felt, for years, for hat store in Titusville, where the latest styles of gents' hats, for the Spring and Fall can be obtained, and hats that have lost their first gloss, can be blocked and made to shine as good as new. As we have before announced, Mr. Oakford, of Philadelphia, is about to open a first-class hat and cap store here, with a full line of furnishing goods. He has secured one of the new store in the new Fertig block, on Diamond street, near Herald office, his fine stock of goods has arrived and he will commence business in a few days. The proprietor is a practical hatter of Philadelphia. The Oakfords are known to every Eastern manufacturer by their hatters and stood at the head of the trade for generations, and their make and style of hats need no recommendation. Every kind of hats and caps, from the lowest to the highest grade and price will be kept for sale, also a full assortment of gent's furnishing goods. We welcome Mr. Oakford to the ranks of our young business men, and have no doubt in his new speciality he will be sustained with a liberal patronage. See his advertisement.

The HERALD was served at Shamburg yesterday morning at 7:35 to its hundreds of readers, who get the paper from Postmaster Merrick's counters. Merrick says it is "the best time on record." He is at the pains to send a boy on horse-back to the train at Miller farm to get his package, a mark of enterprise his patrons will give him due credit for.

War Fashions in Paris.

Tricolored sashes, says the Queen (a London periodical) are worn in Paris as a matter of course; they are not seen in the street, but frequently in carriages, with black costumes and almost universally at the theaters and small evening gatherings, as accompaniments to white dresses; but black, we are informed, is more generally worn at this sad period, than anything else. Those who have not lost relatives in the war, but simply wear black as a mark of respect for their friends who have been less fortunate, do not adopt the deepest mourning, but, as a rule, put on black China crepe dresses, and this material is invariably worn over a black silk petticoat, trimmed with three deep flounces. The newest and prettiest skirts are made with three flounces, separated with bands either of curled feathers or ravelled-out rushes in imitation of feathers. The China crepe tunic is bordered with a feather band and with narrow black lace gathered to look like a frill. This ghastly tribute of respect must be most gratifying to the bereaved. How consoling to the widow of a young officer who has fallen on the battle-field with a bullet through his manly heart to receive a morning visit forty-eight hours after the event from a sympatizing friend clothed in a black China crepe dress over a black silk petticoat trimmed with three deep flounces! And it is curious to reflect how, if there were such an association as a Milliners' Company (limited), the shares would form an exception to the general rule under these circumstances, and rise in value as the prospects of peace diminished; the more bereavements the more flounces. A simple costume might well be introduced by statesmen who have brought about the present condition of affairs, in the shape of a sackcloth skirt trimmed with ashes.

FROM all parts of this District we hear, from both public and private sources, that the renomination of Mr. Gilfillan is received with popular approval and satisfaction. There has been no Congressional contest in the District for ten years at all comparable to the present one, in point of union and harmony in the Republican ranks. The N. Y. Tribune of Saturday, which contains a careful review of the political situation in this State, observing that Mr. G. has been renominated in the Petroleum District, says "he will go through, as slick as the grease that envelops the region, by his old Republican majority of 1,500." The oil region has rapidly grown in population during the past two years; it will poll a much heavier vote this fall in consequence, and we count confidently on a large increase in the Republican vote, and Mr. Gilfillan's majority.

DECISION AFFECTING CIGAR MAKERS.—The Acting Commissioner of Internal Revenue has directed that proceedings be taken to recover the fine and penalty prescribed by law for neglect on the part of any manufacturer of cigars to keep a book for the daily entry of all purchases and sales, and failing to furnish accurate abstracts from the same to the assistant assessor monthly, as required by the rules.

Sales of scraps or cuttings of tobacco to others than manufacturers who will account to their assessors for the same, and pay the tax of them or their products when manufactured, is utterly forbidden. All such scraps are liable to seizure when found in the possession of a leaf-dealer or of any person not a manufacturer, and forfeited to the Government.

MRS. CORA L. TAPPAN, will deliver a lecture next Wednesday evening, September 14th, at Good Templar Hall, Shamburg. Subject: "The prospects and dangers of Europe and America." This is the opening lecture of the literary course for the winter, at Shamburg, and her citizens should give it every encouragement and support. Let the house be well filled to hear this talented speaker.

U. S.—U. S.—U. S.—U. S. Grant, President of the United States at Long Branch, and U. S. Flour at Granger & Co's.

Our Taxes and Expenses.

From the terrific howling the Democratic party are keeping up about taxation, people who read none but Democratic journals would infer that their representatives in Congress were the only persons who favored measures lightening these burdens upon the people. Strange as it may appear to those readers, those representatives did nothing of the kind, but their policy throughout was exactly the reverse. As a party, during the Forty-first Congress, they arrayed themselves in solid phalanx against the most important measures affording relief to the people. Notwithstanding the determined opposition of the Democratic Congressmen, seventeen months have wrought a wonderful change by the efforts of the party in power.

Eighteen months ago there were nearly ten thousand articles used by the people, subject to taxation. It was necessary that it should be so, and the American people knowing it, cheerfully bore up under the great weight. Gradually the necessity for the taxation of so many articles disappeared, and our Republican Congressmen as gradually lightened the burden. Thus it has gone on until now; and the first of October will herald the day when internal taxation shall have been removed upon all articles used in the United States except the following;

Tax on spirituous, vinous and malt liquors.
Tax on tobacco and cigars.
Tax on incomes.
Tax on National Banks.
Tax on gas.
The stamp tax.

Of the burdensome taxation necessitated by the rebellion, all that will remain in twenty-five days hence will be the foregoing little list. And that list does not contain one article that is necessary to life, health or prosperity. Taxation can now be said to be entirely removed from the necessaries of life.

What have we to meet with the funds raised by taxation of the articles just enumerated, and that received from imports and exports? First, there is a debt necessarily created by a war, brought on by the friends of those who in the last Congress opposed everything tending to lighten the burdens of the people. Second: We have interest to pay from year to year on that part of the debt remaining on our hands. Third. There are millions to be paid in pensions. Exclusive of these, the following exhibits the sum total of expenditures for the current fiscal year:

Military Academy	$ 814,869 20
Deficiencies	6,419,694 45
Diplomatic and consular service	1,041,347 00
Works of defense	1,311,500 00
Rivers and harbors	8,945,900 00
Post Office Department, beyond the amount received from postages	5,000,000 00
Legislative, Executive and Judicial	18,949,258 40
Sundry civil expenses	13,437,634 70
Army	24,351,367 22
Navy	19,259,299 20
Indian Department	6,323,565 02
	$103,315,426 29

To see whether the foregoing estimate is an economical one or not, it can be compared with one of the years of Buchanan's administration. For the above objects it spent over seventy millions of gold in twelve months, an equivalent in paper now of eighty-four millions of dollars. But the United States Census Marshal says there are forty millions of population to-day, which is against less than thirty under Buchanan, thus making Grant's administration by far the most economical.

Take the details of expenses from any item in the foregoing table, and they will appear no less satisfactory. During Buchanan's time, the army consisted of nineteen regiments, and cost the government over $20,000,000 each year—$23,000,000 in the paper money of to-day. Now we have a larger army by half, and pay each man considerably more than was paid the soldier at any time previous to 1861, yet the cost of maintaining our army is much less in comparision than at any time under Buchanan.

The foregoing are but items of the general system of economy which has been practiced since the 3d of March, 1869; yet they help to exhibit the system which it is the mission of the Republican party to carry out until the nation no longer feels the effects, financially, of the rebellion. The effeects upon our people, of the loss of hundreds of thousands of brave men, and from other causes, brought about by Democrats, cannot be wiped out by any party.

A Rochester paper says: apple-dealers in Lyons are paying $1 25 per barrel for fall fruit, and insist upon its being carefully selected and sound at that. There is not much money (for producers) in apples at prices like these. Winter fruit will probably open at $1 50 or thereabouts for choice lots.

A Tainted Atmosphere.—Malarious fevers are most prevalent in the fall. Heavy and unwholesome exhalations then arise from the earth, and the great disparity between the temperature of day and night predisposes the system, enfeebled by the summer heats, to epidemic diseases. The secretive organs, the liver especially, are apt, at this period of the year, to become inert and sluggish, and all the bodily powers require renovation. The best, indeed the only protection against the morbid influences of the season is a wholesome medicated stimulant. Pre-eminent among the restoratives of this class, and indeed foremost among the remedial and preventive medicines of modern times, stands Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Its reputation is co-extensive with the Western Hemisphere; it has been a standard article for twenty years, its sales (as may be ascertained by the revenue returns) are far larger than those of any other proprietary preparation on this continent; and the testimony in its favor embraces letters of approval from the most distinguished members of all the learned professions and from well-known residents of almost every city in the Union. These are its credentials. To state what it is doing to prevent and assuage the sufferings of the human family would require more space than can be given to the subject here. The dyspeptic, the bilious, the nervous, the weak and emaciated, the desponding, the broken down, find in its renovating and regulating properties a sure and immediate means of relief. It is a pure vegetable specific, at once safe and potent, and for which the whole materia medica affords no substitute.

Codington & Cornwell, at the old stand on Oil Creek Railroad, at Petroleum Centre, Pa., sell all kinds of Coal, by the ton or car-load. Dealers supplied with the best quality Stoneboro coal on liberal terms.

THE RHINE GUARD.

BY BAYARD TAYLOR.

A peal like thunder calls the brave,
With clash of sword and sound of wave:
To the Rhine, the Rhine, the German Rhine!
Who now will guard the river's line?
Dear Fatherland, no fear be thine!
Firm stands thy guard along the Rhine.

A hundred thousand hearts beat high:
The answer flames from every eye;
The German youth devoted stand
To shield the holy border-land.
Dear Fatherland, no fear be thine!
Firm stands thy guard along the Rhine.

And though my heart in death be dumb,
Still this shall not a Frank become!
Rich as in water thy tair flood,
In Germany is hero-blood.
Dear Fatherland, no fear be thine!
Firm stands thy guard along the Rhine.

So long as blood shall warm our veins,
While for the sword one hand remains,
One arm to bear a gun—no more
Shall foot of foeman tread thy shore!
Dear Fatherland, no fear be thine!
Firm stands thy guard along the Rhine.

The oath resounds, the wave rolls by,
The banners wave, advanced on high:
To the Rhine, the Rhine, the German Rhine!
We all will guard the river's line.
Dear Fatherland, no fear be thine!
Firm stands thy guard along the Rhine.

A Family Hotel Projected—The Contemplated Edifice in Broadway.

From the New York Tribune.

A large apartment hotel, to be planned especially for the use of families, is soon to be commenced on the corner of Broadway and Twenty-seventh street in this city. It will extend through to Fifth avenue. Mr. Paran Stevens is the builder, and he expects to have the contemplated establishment ready for occupancy during next Summer. It will exceed in size and elegance anything of the kind yet erected in this country. The suites of rooms are to be rented at prices varying from $1,500 to $2,000 per annum. It is estimated that the cost of the edifice will be about $700,000. The main front, on Twenty-seventh street, will extend 254 feet along that thoroughfare, from Broadway to Fifth avenue. The style of the building is to be modern French Gothic, with a Mansard roof, which will comprehend a pavilion or projecting section in the centre, and one on each side. At either end of the Broadway front there will also be a spacious pavillion. The materials used are to be, for the first story, light Nova Scotia stone, and for the remaining seven stories, Philadelphia brick with stone trimmings. The interior woodwork will be of black walnut. An elevator for the inmates and hoistways for provisions and coal are to be provided. Attached to the main entrance hall will be a parlor for visitors, to be used until the presence or absence of those they call upon be ascertained by the janitor, who will be always in attendance. The stairways leading from the entrance hall will be made of black walnut. Each suite of apartments will open upon one of the entries, and be entirely independent of all others. It will contain every convenience for a family, including a bath-room and closets, together with a kitchen, dining-room parlor, and several bed-rooms. The kitchen will be about fourteen feet square; the bedrooms from 8 by 12 feet to 16 by 16; the parlors 20 by 24 feet; the dining-rooms from 15 to 22 feet square. Tanks will be constructed on the top of the building for a supply of water to the residents, and for the extinguishment of fires. The upper floor will be occupied by single rooms, for the use of such persons as may desire to hire them, but will contain no artists' studios. Mr. R. M. Hunt is to be the architect of this new edifice.
